

Medieval Studies Student Colloquium

Accessibility in the Middle Ages

20 Feb. 2016

Opening Reception 8:30 am

A.D. White House

Keynote Address by Jonathan Hsy

“Accessing Blind Lives: Multimodal Worlds, from John Gower to Daredevil”

1:00-2:30 p.m.

9:00 Relating Self and Other

Patrick Naeve (Cornell), “Bonaventure’s Itinerant Visions”

Vanessa Jaeger (Binghamton), “Sir
Gowther and Richard Coer de Lyon: The Potentially Abject”

Stephen Kim (Cornell), “Chaucer’s ‘Envoy to Bukton [et al.]’”

10:30 Finding the Right Words

Seth Hunter Koproski (Cornell), “Bysnewed with Snowe, and Snakes Wythinne: William Langland’s Dangerous Latin”

Paul Vinhage (Cornell), “Learning Latin in Late Anglo-Saxon England between Donatus’ Ars Minor and Aelfric’s Colloquy”

Jesse A. McDowell (NC State), “Scribes and their Studiers: A Social History of the Old English Boethius
Manuscripts”

2:40 Transforming Texts

Caroline Gruenbaum (NYU), “Berekhiah ha-Nakdan’s Mishle Shu’alim (Fox Fables) and the (Im)Permeable Boundaries between Medieval Jewish and Christian Literature”

Pichaya Damrongpiwat (Cornell), “No charge for to telle’: The Story of Philomel and the Cecily Chaumpaigne Release”

John Wyatt Greenlee (Cornell), “Mappae Mandeville: Accessing and Teaching the Geography of Sir John Mandeville’s Travels”

Thanks to the Cornell Program in Medieval Studies, the Society for the Humanities, GPSAFC, the Cornell Library, and the Cornell Departments of History of Art and Visual Studies, History, and English for their generous support and sponsorship.